Savannah, Georgia, is a city with a rich and storied history. It is also a city with a dark side. Many of Savannah's historic buildings are said to be haunted by the ghosts of those who died within their walls.

In this article, we will take you on a tour of some of the most haunted places in Savannah. We will tell you the stories of the ghosts that are said to reside in these buildings, and we will provide you with tips on how to experience the paranormal for yourself.

The Mercer-Williams House

The Mercer-Williams House is one of the most famous haunted houses in Savannah. It was built in 1868 by a wealthy cotton merchant named James Mercer. Mercer died in the house in 1871, and his ghost is said to haunt the premises to this day.

Guests at the Mercer-Williams House have reported seeing Mercer's ghost wandering the halls of the house. They have also heard strange noises, such as footsteps and voices. Some guests have even reported being touched by Mercer's ghost.

The Pirate's House

The Pirate's House is another popular haunted spot in Savannah. It was built in 1753 and is said to be haunted by the ghosts of pirates who frequented the establishment.

Guests at the Pirate's House have reported seeing the ghosts of pirates walking the halls of the restaurant. They have also heard strange noises, such as the sound of swords clashing. Some guests have even reported being attacked by the ghosts of pirates.

Colonial Park Cemetery

Colonial Park Cemetery is the oldest cemetery in Savannah. It is the final resting place for many of the city's most famous residents, including James Oglethorpe, the founder of Savannah.

Colonial Park Cemetery is said to be haunted by the ghosts of those who are buried there. Visitors to the cemetery have reported seeing the ghosts of Confederate soldiers, slaves, and children. Some visitors have even reported being touched by the ghosts of the dead.

The Sorrel-Weed House

The Sorrel-Weed House is a historic mansion that was built in 1838. It is said to be haunted by the ghost of a young woman named Rachel Owens. Owens was a beautiful young woman who was engaged to be married to a wealthy plantation owner. However, Owens died on her wedding day, and her ghost is said to haunt the Sorrel-Weed House to this day.

Guests at the Sorrel-Weed House have reported seeing Owens' ghost wandering the halls of the mansion. They have also heard strange noises, such as the sound of crying and laughter. Some guests have even reported being touched by Owens' ghost.

Paranormal Investigation

If you are interested in experiencing the paranormal for yourself, there are a number of paranormal investigation groups that offer tours of Savannah's haunted places. These tours typically last for several hours and include a visit to some of the most haunted buildings in the city.

During a paranormal investigation, you may experience some of the same phenomena that guests at the Mercer-Williams House, the Pirate's House, Colonial Park Cemetery, and the Sorrel-Weed House have reported. You may see ghosts, hear strange noises, or even be touched by the spirits of the dead.

Savannah is a city with a rich and storied history. It is also a city with a dark side. Many of Savannah's historic buildings are said to be haunted by the ghosts of those who died within their walls.
